Planting and care

Best planting season of Rose plants are in July - August at 75 cm x 75 cm spacing. Rose plant propagation is cutting and budding. At the time of plantation, use a potting mix as soil, vermicompost, and coco peat. Re-pooting is done in a spring season.

Sunlight: Full to partial sunlight

Soil: Clay or loamy soil

Water: Moderately

Temperature: 15 to 38 degrees C

Fertilizer: Apply any organic fertilizer.

Caring for Damascus Rose

- Slow release or organic fertilizers applied to the ground are the most effective; however foliar feeds are also valuable for a quick effect and to help keep the leaves healthy.
- Mulching with organic matter (a very wide range is available) is a very important part of rose growing, helping to conserve water, keeping the ground cool and feeding the micro-organisms and worms in the soil.
- Regular watering is essential, the rose will be stronger, healthier and, most importantly, produce more flowers.
- Early spring is the best time to prune and cut 1/4 inch above a bud eye so the bud eye doesn't dry out.

Typical uses of Damascus Rose

Special features: Attractive scented flowers

Culinary use: Rose hips are occasionally made into jam, jelly, marmalade, and soup or are brewed for tea, primarily for their high vitamin C content. They are also pressed and filtered to make rose hip syrup.

Ornamental use: Roses are best known as ornamental plants grown for their flowers in the garden and sometimes indoors. They have been also used for commercial perfumery and commercial cut flower crops. Some are used as landscape plants, for hedging.

Pot seems to be really small. DO I have to shift the plan to the bigger pot as it starts growing in a few months?
