Plectranthus amboinicus is the scientific name of false ajwain plant. It is a sprawling and semi-succulent perennial herb. It has a fast growth rate. Flowers are borne in 10 to 20 flowered, densely velvety spikes.

Planting and care

The ajwain plant is very easy to grow. In dry climates the herb grows easily in a well-drained, semi-shaded position. Plant individuals with the distance between 35 - 45 cm. Divide the Cuban oregano in spring, to produce new growth, if it becomes overgrown or crowded.
