

Cypripedium parviflorum - Plant

Some of the northern species can withstand extreme cold, growing under the snow and blooming when the snow melts. But, in the wild, some have become rare and close to extinction, due to an ever shrinking natural habitat and over-collection

Rating: Not Rated Yet

Price

Sales price R 123,456

Discount

Ask a question about this product

Description

Description for Cypripedium parviflorum

Cypripedium parviflorum, commonly known as yellow lady s slipper, moccasin flower, or hairy yellow ladyslipper is a lady s slipper orchid found in North America.

Common name	Flower colours	Bloom time	Height	Difficulty
Yellow ladys slipper, moccasin flower	Creamy yellow with purplish brown sepals	April to June	1.50 to 2.50 feet	Easy to grow

Planting and care

Best grown in rich, well-drained soils in part shade. Likes moist boggy areas. Prefers part shade with 1-2 hours of morning or evening sun in cool summer climates with moderately cold winters. Best performance occurs in USDA Zones 3-7 (Zone 8 if plants are given additional shade

Sunlight	Soil	Water	Temperature	Fertilizer
Full Sun	Well-drained soil	Medium	70 to 78 degrees C (21 to 26 degrees C).	Apply any organic fertilizer

Caring for Cypripedium parviflorum

The Lady Slipperâ€™s need for shade translates into placement by an east or west window thatâ€™s covered with a sheer or venetian blinds. The Lady Slipper plant can even thrive in an interior setting like a coffee table or interior kitchen counter.

Typical uses of Cypripedium parviflorum

Special features: Moist woodland areas. This rare plant will be very difficult to obtain in commerce.

Ornamental use: The plant is used for ornamental purpose.

References

<http://www.missouribotanicalgarden.org/PlantFinder/PlantFinderDetails.aspx?taxonid=284245&isprofile=0&>
<http://www.proplants.com/guide/phaphiopedilum-orchid-care-guide>

Reviews

There are yet no reviews for this product.