Description

They are evergreen, exceptionally hardy, produce tiny racemes of snow-white, bell-like flowers on short stems in summer, and are used primarily as ground covers.

Common name: Mondo grass.

Color: White.

Bloom time: Summer.

Height: 2 feet.

Difficulty level: Easy.

Planting & Care

Sunlight: Partial to full shade, but can withstand full sun in cooler areas, if they receive sufficient water.

Soil: Well draining, slightly acidic soil (pH 5.5-6.5).

Water: Water regularly and deeply. Twice a week in summer will be more than enough, unless it is excessively hot.

Temperature: It is frost hardy to -5°C.

Fertilizer: A light application of a balanced fertilizer or a top dressing of compost in the spring.

Use

Ornamental use:

- The 'calming effect of mondo grasses makes them excellent fillers around accent plants such as cycads, and they are equally charming as border plants in the front of flower beds.
