Description

Description for Gaillardia double mixed

Blanket flowers are wonderfully cheerful, long-blooming plants for hot, sunny gardens. They produce single or double daisy flowers through most of the summer and well into fall. The daisy-like flowers are produced from early summer to early fall in shades of orange, red and yellow, adding sizzle to the garden and attracting nectar-seeking butterflies.

Common name(s): Blanket Flower.

Flower colours: varies

Bloom time: Early summer to early fall.

Max reachable height: 24-30 inches.

Difficulty to grow:: Easy to grow.

Planting and care

Plant Gaillardia x Grandiflora any time after frost.

Dig a hole twice the diameter of the pot the plant is in.

Carefully remove the plant from its container and place it in the hole so the top of the root ball is level with the soil surface.

Carefully fill in around the root ball and firm the soil gently. Water thoroughly.

Sunlight: Full sun.

Soil: a well-draining soil with moderately fertile.

Water: Water well until they are not established. Once established, occasional watering should become a part of blanket flowersâ€™™ care.

Temperature: Gaillardia can be grown with temperatures of 65-70 F.

Fertilizer: Apply an all-purpose slow release fertilizer on the soil every couple of months.

Caring for Gaillardia double mixed

Gaillardia x grandiflora does not require deadheading to keep blooming, but the plants will look better and be fuller if you do cut the stems back, when the flowers start to fade. You will also get more continuous flowering with deadheading.

Harvesting

Early summer to early fall.

Typical uses of Gaillardia double mixed

Special features: Gaillardia is short-lived perennial with richly coloured, daisylike flower. Gaillardia blossoms attract bees and butterflies, and the plants will bloom for eight weeks or more when old flowers are removed.

Culinary use: NA

Ornamental use: Gaillardia are such long bloomers, they work equally well in borders and containers. The bold flowers blend especially well with soft textures, like thread-leaf Coreopsis and cosmos, as well as airy grasses.

Medicinal use: NA
