Description

Description for Juglans cinerea

Prefers moist, organically rich, well-drained soils in full sun. Intolerant of shade. Its bark is less fissured, it has fewer leaflets per leaf and its nuts are more oval than round. Foliage turns an undistinguished yellow in fall.

Yellowish green monoecious flowers appear in late spring. Nuts mature in fall. Nutshells can be hard to crack and the kernels are often small. But the kernels are sweet, oily and tasty, having a buttery flavor.

Common name	Flower colours	Bloom time	Height	Difficulty
Butternut or white walnut	Yellowish-green	May to June	40 to 60 feet	Easy to grow

Planting and care

It is native to moist bottomlands, lowland forests and some drier limestone soils in eastern and midwestern North America.

Sunlight	Soil	Water	Temperature	Fertilizer
Full Sun	Moist, organically rich, well-drained soil	Medium	16d degrees C (60 degrees F)	Apply any organic fertilizer

Caring for Juglans cinerea

- As they have become more and rarer due to disease, it is fairly uncommon to see butternuts planted by enthusiasts.
- In the case that they are, the biggest key is to protect them from pests and canker and make sure their soil drains well.
